Balancing YouScheduler and Academics

YouScheduler LLC is managed by two full-time college seniors at the University of New Hampshire. With a full academic course-load, extracurricular activities and organizations, while growing a startup business, our co-founders have had to master time management and communication skills as well as the ability to multitask. As we transitioned back into the fall semester of 2019, our co-founders and employees had to adapt to balancing impending course work and other school related obligations while also running a start up business. Through lots of phone calls, emails, and weekly team meetings, YouScheduler and our employees have made a smooth transition into the academic schoolyear.

“Work-life-balance is a challenging feat. Over the past couple of years I transitioned to manage all tasks and appointments between Google Calendar and Google Keep. I complete company work as soon as I have an openings, which most days is around the clock, including most weekends!”
